Back to Weisberg.

Schmitt was eloquent in ms sympathy and promised to recover the $14$ from the Weisbergs. Gathering up the remains of the Paim Sunday gown Schmitt and Toni descended on No. 60 Catharine street. Father Weisberg was eating breakfast, and the only member of the family in the clothing store at the time was the beautiful Anna Weisberg, the belle of Catharine street. This is Anna's story of what happened.

Mr. Schmitt and his protege swept through the door, almost unhinging it. Toni swore dreadfully at her in a language she could not understand. Schmitt demanded the return of the $14$, drew a huge revolver from his pocket and pressed the muzzle against her pearly teeth.
